It is easier to separate the strictly and abundant, strengthens all first class right hand pitchers from those who are not in that class than to draw the same line in the left hand division. There are half a dozen or se right handed pitchers who would be named almost unanimously, with, of course, differences of opinion as to the best of this lot, but among the left handed twirlers there is no small circle that stands out so prominently. Try to pick out the best southpaw in the big leagues and you find yourself wondering over the list of a dozen and wavering as to which are the tiptop-

For day in and day out work and having everything they are at the top of the heap. But who is the best left hander or who are the best left handers in the business? There wouldn't be any such unanim ity in naming the chosen few. More pondering would be required to arrive at a decision.

None Stands Out Like Waddell. Ask George Stallings of the New York Americans who is the best left hander and his answer would be "Jim Vaughn." Ask Connie Mack and be

New York has three of the best left handers in the game-Vaughn of the Highlanders, Wiltse of the Giants and Rucker of the Superbas. This is Vanghn's first active year in fast company, and he basn't earned the reputation that comes from a long period of consistent work, as has Willse.

Vaughn Has Good Repertory. Vaughn has speed, change of pace, control, good breaks, as good a repertory as the next pitcher, a cool head and doesn't get rattled. He is probably the most promising young left hander natural equipment of any of the southpaws. Were all the left handers thrown in the market none would command a bigger price.

Wiltse is very consistent, a high class craftsman with spiendld curves, long head, exceptional control and lots of pluck. He is steady, a good man to send in in a trying moment and the best fielding pitcher by far among the left handers. With a more rugged physique he would be at the top of the beap. Rucker has more on the ball than any other left hander except Vaughn, but tends toward unstead! ness and inconsistent work in the box. Leifield has shown lots of strictly first class work, but with a tendency toward being erratic. New York, Sept. 15.-Hugene Higgins, the millionaire carpet manufacturer, society and club man, who is protected at every turn by the present high tariff, was caught in the customs net that is now spread for unwary and lax-minded transatlantic voyagers, when he came home on the Kronpinzessin Cecille. Mr. Higgins brought six trunks, and he dedared nothing.
